

Tips for a great morning tea

1. Start planning

Once you've signed up for your morning tea and chosen a date, it's time to begin the preparations. We've provided assistance by sending you a comprehensive host kit, complete with suggestions, recipes, posters, games, decorations, and more, all geared towards ensuring your event is a hit. Additionally, you can access additional decorations and treats from our website.

2. Spread the word

Make sure to extend invitations to your colleagues, clients, friends, and family for your morning tea. You can discover downloadable invitations and social media graphics on our website. Also, remember to share your fundraising page across your social media platforms.

3. Make it personal

There are many reasons why you might be motivated to host a morning tea for National Survivors' Day. Every event carries its distinctive essence derived from the stories that fuel it.

Personalise your morning tea, whether it's at home with friends, in the park with your family, or at work or within your local community – the choice is yours.

4. Bank your funds and make a difference

Once you've put away the teacups and cleaned up the crumbs, it's crucial to complete the fundraising process and deposit the collected funds. The money you raise plays a significant role in sustaining our essential support services for Survivors, funding research initiatives, and supporting advocacy and educational prevention programs.
